Vernon Manley's Horse

Editor of Reformer:—On page five of your issue of Oct. 16 you printed an item concerning Mrs. Powers and a horse owned by me. Your item is an outrageous lie, being false and slander-ouv. Please correct or retract in your paper. If you wish to publish the truth I will give it to you straight.

The item referred to stated that Mrs. Powers shot Mr. Manley's horse in.

Powers shot Mr. Manley's horse in Dummerston, and that the horse was in a bad condition, evidently with glanders, and was too aged to eat. Mr. Manley says the horse could eat, but could not eat hay, and that he made a port-mortem examination of the horse, and found no symptom of glanders, only distemper; further that the rea-son he allowed Mrs. Powers to kill the horse was because he was threatened with criminal prosecution if he didn't.
